

Forces

Volume 2009

Article 109

5-1-2009

Two Doublebent Snakes

Greg McClure

Follow this and additional works at: <https://digitalcommons.collin.edu/forces>

Recommended Citation

McClure, Greg (2009) "Two Doublebent Snakes," Forces: Vol. 2009 , Article 109.
Available at: <https://digitalcommons.collin.edu/forces/vol2009/iss1/109>

This Poem is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@Collin. It has been accepted for inclusion in Forces by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@Collin. For more information, please contact mtomlin@collin.edu.

RUNGS Donna Gors

TWO

DOUBLEBENT SNAKES

Greg McClure

two doublebent snakes
slither out from their father's nest hand raised as if to say yield before i force you oh God hold back the skies chaos rains from the clouds in metal casings cursing my house with disorder and i toiled so long in that garden my son wakes two minutes before dawn by sun up his room is barren drowned by the horizon he leaves somberly ill news in official envelopes and my roses are uprooted my house transforms instantly and portrays all else five years i cry fruitlessly these envelopes come too frequently because there never is any they bear no good news

Poland, 1939